

Webinar

Creating Threat Assessment Teams: How To Effectively Evaluate Risk & Assess Harm Tuesday, July 18 ~ 1:00-2:00pm (Eastern)

Once the live date has passed, this training will be available on demand.

Overview

Campus threat assessment teams are tasked with a tremendous responsibility to understand and evaluate potential risks on campus. The objective of a campus threat assessment team is to identify risks and assess the likelihood of harm to individuals and the campus community as a whole. Additionally, federal law obligates schools to undertake threat assessments related to a multitude of concerns, and college and university threat assessment teams must be prepared to do so.

Join Claire K. Hall, J.D. as she provides practical advice, based upon best practices, that your threat assessment team can start implementing today. During this webinar, participants will receive recommendations regarding threat assessment teams and how those teams can mitigate potential threats on campus. Participants will also understand the importance of assessing threats based on facts and behavior, as opposed to generalizations, fears and stereotypes.

Objectives:

- Identify the individuals who should be part of your threat assessment team
- Acquire a better understanding of how federal laws apply to threat assessment
- Understand the various ways in which schools can evaluate potential risks
- Learn how to avoid generalizations, fear, and stereotypes
- Determine when you can and cannot disclose information regarding threats
- Review steps that can be taken when threats are imminent, serious or continuing

Who Should Attend?

- 2-year & 4-year institutions
- Academic Affairs/Instruction
- Student Services/Affairs
- Campus Safety
- Student Code of Conduct Officers
- Any educator interested in learning more about threat assessment
